VIGOROUS SEARCH IS LAUNCHED FOR ROALD AMUNDSEN

Redoubled Efforts Made to Locate Ten Missing Flyers in Arctic Zone

NOBLE AND PARTY GET SECOND SUPPLY BATCH

Additional Radio Equipment Given Stranded Group to Facilitate Communication

KING'S BAY, June 22. (AP)—General Umberto Nobile and the five men marooned with him on the Arctic ice, today received their second batch of supplies from the air.

Majors Maddalena and Penco flew over the camp of the refugees. They found no opportunity to land however, and again made use of parachutes to get provisions and radio equipment to the stranded men.

While this effort of the flyers was successful, they failed to find any trace of Roald Amundsen and his five companions in the French plane piloted by Rene Guilbaud.

The Italian aviators also reported they had seen nothing of the balloon portion of the Italia or the seven men who were carried away with it, when the gondola of the big aircraft was torn loose on May 25.

Neither was there news of the other three members of the Italia's party who, on May 30, started to walk across the ice from the place where General Nobile and his companions were spilled.

With Nobile forced to await rescue by an ice breaker, increased efforts will be made now to learn the fate of the missing ten explorers and six would-be rescuers.

The radio operator of the Nobile base ship, Citta di Milano, has been busy trying to find some trace of the huge French plane in which Amundsen and his companions took off from Norway Monday night, but thus far the search has been fruitless.

The Citta di Milano has communicated with the ice cutter Braganza, now off North Cape, and with the Russian ice breaker Malign, which is near South Cape in a rough sea, slowly making her way northward in an effort to break through to Nobile. Neither of these ships, however, had anything to report concerning Amundsen.

Hope to Reach Nobile. The Malign is laying her course for Cape Leigh Smith and it is hoped will be able to reach the stranded Nobile group.

Lieutenant Lueton Holm and Captain Riser-Larsen, the Norwegian flyers who have made numerous air reconnaissances over the Nobile party, again flew to the vicinity, but were unable to see the men. The party, however, wireless that they had sighted the pilots.

It is regarded as evidently difficult, if not impossible, to strike Nobile's position exactly without wireless guidance. Neither of the Norwegian planes is equipped with radio. Major Maddalena, who found the Nobile party on Wednesday, found it difficult with his excellent radio equipment to locate the marooned men.

When Major Maddalena dropped the supplies Wednesday only one of the parachutes to which the packages were attached failed to open. This, unfortunately, contained fresh batteries and an accumulator for the radio outfit whose strength Nobile has been carefully husbanding. Major Maddalena now plans to drop a new set of batteries.

URGES PROBATION OFFICER NEED

Rotary Club is Addressed by Head of Salvation Army Work Here

Need of an attendance officer and a probation officer for Paris in order to forestall the tendency to delinquency on the part of underprivileged children was urged by Mrs. Stella VanDyke, officer in charge of the Salvation Army corps of Paris, in a talk to the Rotary club Friday. Mrs. VanDyke, who has been associated with the Salvation Army for 24 years, spoke on the subject of "Underprivileged Children."

Mrs. VanDyke, citing numerous cases that have come to her attention, pointed out that the underprivileged children are soon led to juvenile delinquency and in later life into criminal activities. She made an earnest appeal to the Rotary club as an organization to extend its sympathy and aid to the children who, through the poverty, illiteracy or neglect of their parents, do not have the chance in the world that they should have. She urged that sympathetic tolerance be extended them because of their unfortunate circumstances.

Mrs. VanDyke was introduced by J. A. McDill, chairman of the program committee.

Preceding Mrs. VanDyke's talk, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Reynolds, entertained with several musical numbers. Mr. Reynolds, who was introduced by the Rev. W. C. Bennett, is musical director of the revival being conducted by the Emmanuel Baptist church.

Arthur Caddell, club president, announced the receipt of a message from Robert Lane, president-elect of the club, in which he declared that the convention of Rotary International at Minneapolis has been one of the most outstanding in years. The installation of officers, recently elected, will be held at the next meeting.

Guests yesterday were Herman Coker, James M. Caviness, J. R. Gill, Gregory Salice and Gregory Robinson of Paris; Edward Henley of Los Angeles, Cal.; Lex Buchanan of Abilene; the Rev. Harvey Scott of Sherman; E. C. Bryant of Memphis, Tenn.; Winifred Barnes, Sam Holloway of Detroit, and the Rev. W. C. Bennett of Paris.

Smith's Prohibition Views Are Unchanged, He Says, Clearing Houston Muddle

NEW YORK, June 22. (AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith's views on prohibition are unchanged. He was asked by the New York World:

"In view of the question raised at Houston about Norman E. Mack's statement, the World wishes to know: Have you changed your belief that there should be amendment of the present prohibition provisions?"

"I have not," the governor replied. Since passage of the prohibition amendment, Governor Smith has maintained it was improper because adopted without a referendum.

"Governor Smith believes that if any state desires a certain alcoholic content of beverage that state has the right to determine that content. If the state desires to be dry, then it is the right of the state to be dry."

Wouldn't Elaborate. When Mr. Mack's statement was construed as expressing the views of Governor Smith, Mr. Mack hastened to say that he was speaking only for himself.

The governor refused to elaborate on his views after he had given his answer to the World's editorial. The governor denied recent reports that he might resign his present office on receiving the presidential nomination.

"There is certainly nothing to that," he said. When asked whether he desired to comment on who the vice presidential nominee might be, he said: "I am not handling that end of it. That is something that the convention is capable of working out. I believe that collective judgment in such matters is always best."

The heat at Houston drew an expression of sympathy from the governor for those who will have to work out the political problems of the party next week.

Cotton Acreage Up 6 Per Cent. AUSTIN, June 22. (AP)—Texas has increased its cotton acreage six per cent or about 1,000,000 acres and the crop, two weeks late, is "fairly good," George B. Terrell, state commissioner of agriculture, said Friday in his first condition report for this year.

His plans are now showing up in several parts of the state with slight damage so far. Some cotton fleas are reported but are doing no damage. Recent rains have retarded cultivation of cotton in some sections and some fields are becoming grassy, but this is not general.

Oklahoma Bank Robbed. ENID, Okla., June 22. (AP)—An unmasked bandit today robbed the Bank of Breckenridge ten miles northeast of here of approximately $1,000.

SIX ARE INDICTED FOR LYNCHING OF HOUSTON NEGRO

Murder Charges Filed Against Seven Men, the Seventh Still at Large

ONE MAKES STATEMENT DETAILING NEGRO'S DEATH

Slayer of Officer Dropped Twice From Bridge; Rope too Long First Time

HOUSTON, June 22. (AP)—Six men were indicted for murder today less than forty-eight hours after they were alleged to have lynched Robert Powell, 24-year-old negro, the accused slayer of City Detective A. W. Davis.

Murder charges were filed against seven men late Thursday and five of them were arrested a few minutes later. The seventh, Allen M. "Bubba" Kent, still is at large.

The other six men who are charged with having taken Powell from his bed in a hospital where he was near death from a bullet wound in the stomach, supposed to have been inflicted by Detective Davis, are: A. B. Wheeler, 26, boiler maker; John "Slim" Kent, 27, ambulance driver; Charles Oldham, 24; P. T. "Clyde" Shuck, 32; Howard "Tweed" Minton and T. J. "Jack" Reese.

One of the men, Wheeler, made a statement to officers and newspapermen in which he described the lynching. The negro, Wheeler said, was not killed when he first was dropped from the bridge from which his body was found hanging by a rope. Powell was put back on the bridge, the rope shortened and the negro thrown off the second time, the fall dislocating his neck, the statement said. Wheeler was not indicted.

Detective Davis was shot to death Sunday when he attempted to disperse a group of negroes.

HOOPER CLOSES WORK IN EAST To Start for California Soon and May Confer With Coolidge

WASHINGTON, June 22. (AP)—Secretary Hoover practically completed today his three campaign conferences with party leaders and reached a decision to leave Washington Thursday night for California, where he will receive formal notification of his nomination.

On his trip West, it is likely that the nominee will visit President Coolidge in Wisconsin. Whether he will present his resignation from the cabinet was not made known.

Mr. Hoover conferred with Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the Kansas City convention. Representative Walter S. Newton of Minnesota, who is the probable chairman of the campaign speakers' bureau and C. Hamilton of Colorado, national committeeman from Colorado, and also received a brief visit from General Pershing.

Senator Moses, after this conference with Hoover referred to the statement made by Smith of New York and Norman E. Mack, Smith supporter, on prohibition, declaring that "for every wet Republican Smith could get, he would lose two dry women Democrats."

AIR MAIL PILOT KILLED IN STORM

First Flyer in Chicago-Dallas Service Crashes In Night Flight

EMPORIA, Kan., June 22. (AP)—Speeding southward through darkness with the night air mail, Wayne G. Neville, 29, Dallas, Texas, was dashed to death by a tornado near Lebo, Kan., twenty miles east of here early today.

His plane crashed in a pasture. Neville was the first pilot of the National Air Transport, Inc., air mail contractor to be killed since the Chicago-Dallas air route was established two years ago.

A violent windstorm, which blew down telephone poles and unroofed buildings spread over Kansas soon after Neville had taken off from Kansas City and a tornado, swirling high in the air, passed over Lebo.

Whether the pilot struck the tornado or was dashed to earth by whipping lateral winds was not known.

Jim Reed Now At Ringside For Houston Conclave

HOUSTON, June 22. (AP)—"Jim" Reed of Missouri came to the ringside tonight, full of confidence in his fight for the Democratic presidential nomination, and he was given a hearty reception by the early arrivals to the party convention, who met him as he entered his headquarters in the Rice hotel.

He was silent upon politics, beyond the expression that the "situation seems satisfactory."

Efforts to draw out the usually outspoken campaigner upon the pending row over prohibition and the prospects of his entry into a coalition to stop Al Smith, proved unavailing, pending a conference he has planned with newspapermen tomorrow.

CONFERENCES OF SOUTHERN CHIEFS STARTED FRIDAY

Cordell Hull, Endorsed by Tennessee, Called to Attend One of Sessions

SOME SMITH OPPONENTS DECLINE TO PARTICIPATE

Prohibition Issue Inadvertently Bobs Up Through Statement of Norman Mack

HOUSTON, June 22. (AP)—A series of conferences among Democratic leaders of the South was started here today in an effort to stop Alfred E. Smith in the party convention which opens here next Tuesday.

Cordell Hull, who has the endorsement of the Democracy of Tennessee for the presidential nomination, was called in on the conference but he said that his only participation was to prepare a statement, setting forth his views in favor of prohibition.

Representative Hull said that he was in a receptive mood but he did not propose to enter into a bitter party fight such as attended the Madison Square gathering.

A great deal of secrecy was thrown around the conference which are to be continued up to the very time of balloting for the presidential nomination. Southern leaders now coming to the ground looked for the augmenting of their forces as others arrived from Alabama, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Virginia.

Some other of the Smith opponents were approached before the initial conference was held but it was reported that they had declined to become a party to any coalition aimed at Smith. They had insisted that their favorite should stand or fall upon their own ability to gain strength from the delegates.

The activities of the opposition apparently gave the Smith adherents little concern. They went ahead with their plans for headquarters and for a windup of the campaign, confident in the belief that the New York governor would obtain the necessary two-thirds of the 1,100 delegates on an early ballot.

BLANTON TELLS OF FIGHTS ON EXTRAVAGANCE

Speech Here Friday is Broad-side Attack on Practices of Members Congress

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene, candidate for the United States senate, in an address to Lamar county voters at the court house Friday afternoon reviewed his campaign against corruption and extravagance at Washington. Mr. Blanton's talk was a retort to his congressional and newspaper critics, who he said had caused him to be placed in a false light before the public "because my actions have been in opposition to their own selfish purposes."

Blanton was introduced by R. E. Eubank, Paris attorney. Declaring at the outset that he went to congress 12 years ago with the express purpose to stop governmental graft and waste, Blanton launched into a discussion of his "fights" for more economical administration by the elimination of abuses which had been current in congress for many years. He declared:

"When I went to Washington, I was determined to stop the waste and graft that had been going on for 50 years. I announced my intention at once, and was told that I had better begin by cleaning up the capitol itself. I found that this was so. I began by attacking the old garden seed graft and, after a fight lasting four years, put an end to this extravagance which was costing the taxpayers $1,000,000 annually."

Other extravagances of congress, which resulted to the personal benefit of congressmen, were assailed by Blanton. He declared that it is customary for every senator and representative to receive a handsome cedar chest each Christmas as a present from the government. He denounced this practice as the floor of the house and during the discussion, declared that he had made "Uncle Joe" Cannon admit that he had received 44 cedar chests. Mr. Cannon had been in congress 44 years. Blanton also charged that the practice of furnishing congressmen with expensively bound volumes of all governmental publications was an unwarranted waste. He alleged that the senators procured the finest of food in the senate restaurant, paying only about one-third of what he would be charged by a commercial establishment. "The employees of the senate restaurant are on the government's payroll," he said. Mr. Blanton read a menu from the senate restaurant to show the character of food that is served.

"It takes nearly two hours to serve one of these elaborate meals," he declared "and some of the senators spend their time in the restaurant rather than tending to business on the floor of the senate. The whole thing should be stopped."

Blanton alleged that in the stationery shop various merchandise was sold to the congressmen other than office supplies. In order to put an end to miscellaneous expenditures from the stationery appropriations, he bought various articles, including an expensive manicure set, playing cards, a poker set and a whisky flask, and exhibited them on the floor of the house.

Public sentiment, which was aroused, moved congress to take action, Blanton declared. "My action against such practices," Blanton said, "caused me to lose the friendship of many of my colleagues. They declared that I ought to keep my mouth shut and take what I could get. My enemies tried to put me out of congress. In the case regarding the stationery shop they declared that I had led but I took the matter to the public and they vindicated me." He exhibited receipts to show he made the purchases.

Blanton cited his record in opposing the "salary-grab" bill, which first came up in 1921. The bill was for the purpose of raising salaries of senators and representatives.

"When this bill first came up for vote," Blanton said, "I arose as a point of order declaring that the bill was not authorized by law. The speaker sustained me and the bill was automatically killed. For four years I fought this bill in the same way. In 1925, however, the senate got it through as a rider on the appropriation bill in a midnight session. If one senator had made the same point of order that I had the bill could not have been passed. The senators knew this too."

Blanton next urged that all members of congress be restrained by law from giving their services to private enterprise while they are in office. He declared that certain representatives from Philadelphia and New York had attended congress only one day during the session, the first day. Their time was spent in attending to private business and some are making as much as $50,000 a year," he said.

Blanton assailed the practice of the government paying the funeral expenses of members of congress who die while in office. He pointed out that the funeral expense of one congressman, who died recently, was $7,120. This is not the only expense, he said, the widow receives $10,000 gift from the government. Blanton said that he had been trying to stop this custom. "I have investigated virtually every government bureau, Blanton declared, "to see whether or not it is properly conducted and it is necessary bureau. I have helped to abolish many. At present there are nearly 200 government bureaus and, in my opinion, about two-thirds of them should be abolished. New bureaus are established

MOODY OUTLINES ACHIEVEMENTS OF HIS REGIME

Governor to Make Speeches in Larger Centers: Asks Press to Carry Reports

AUSTIN, June 22, (AP)—A quiet recapitulation, largely through the newspapers, of the administration's achievements will be Governor Moody's method of campaigning for re-election, he revealed today. Pointing out that it will be impossible to cover the state in speechmaking, the governor said he intends to deliver addresses during July, only in the principal centers and hopes "the newspapers will carry what I have to say to the people throughout the state. I like to campaign, and wish I could go to every town in Texas, but that can't be done."

Among the accomplishments he will discuss are: "apportionment of $15 per capita for the public schools, added support of higher education, rescue of the prison system from debt and its return to a self-supporting basis, purchase of lower priced textbooks, highway construction and maintenance, reduction of the state ad valorem tax, sound condition of the treasury and remedial laws passed by the 40th legislature."

"More has been done for Texas education during the past 18 months than in any like period. The public school system has been better supported than in any past administration. Children received last year, and will receive next year, a $15 per capita apportionment, but never before authorized. It means $1,500,000 more for the schools this year and next," the executive said.

"Through an appropriation, opportunity for high school attendance was provided every youth in school districts without high schools. The last legislature appropriated money for their tuition and the parents heretofore had been forced to do so."

"An amendment by the last legislature requires that textbooks be sold to the state at the lowest wholesale price which the publishers charge in sales at their plants. In the past, publishers added on freight, storage, hauling charges and other items. This amendment will save the state $200,000."

"Institutions of higher learning have been supported better, best opportunities possible having been given."

Highways
"When the present highway commission took office, unpaid obligations amounted to $6,250,000 and highways were in worse repair than since our state program was begun. Just before the present commission went in it had on hand only $597,828, and, although federal aid approximating $6,500,000 was available, the department had no money to pay its debts, meet federal requirements and match federal funds. Federal aid had been held up; its withdrawal was threatened because roads had not been maintained properly. To meet the necessity, the gasoline tax was fixed at three cents. On Sept. 1 it reverts to two cents. All highway department obligations paid, federal aid has been secured and roads placed in better repair, and maintained better, than at any time in the past."

"During this administration the highway department has placed under construction 326 miles of concrete road, 219 miles of bituminous hard surface, 758 miles of grading and drainage structures, 64 miles of gravel and 1,056 miles of asphalt. Construction work involving $19,939,143 has been put under way."

"More miles of all weather highway have been built in the last 18 months than in any like period in history. Experience has proved that the type of asphalt topping for which the last administration paid 20 cents a square yard can be done at from seven to ten cents. The automobile tax law has been amended to give the counties a larger share of this fund for building and maintaining lateral roads."

"The state's financial condition never has been better at this time of the year. On May 31, the treasury's cash balance was $23,340,108 and that of the general revenue fund $5,928,423. It is safe to say the ad valorem tax rate for 1928 will be even less than the 1927 rate. Should it remain the same, the rate for the two years of the administration would be eight cents less than that for the preceding administration. I feel confident that the ad valorem toll will be the lowest since the Campbell administration, ending in 1910. This will be accomplished and every debt and obligation of the state met punctually and every department and institution properly supported."

"The prison system, long the people's problem, has been put on a self-supporting basis. In 1925 and 1926 it lost $653,702. About $1,664,799 was required to pay its outstanding obligations at the beginning of this administration. During the first year of this administration, the system was self-supporting and showed a net gain of $7,554."

"The 39th legislature appropriated $4,214,006 to operate departments and institutions from Sept. 1, 1925, to Sept. 1, 1927. The present administration inherited a long list of differences, unpaid obligations and departments and institutions not properly supported from the preceding administration. To meet these, the 40th legislature had to appropriate $2,685,075. Thus, the 39th legislature should have appropriated $46,093,137 for the period from Sept. 1, 1925, to Sept. 1, 1927."

"The 40th legislature appropriated $47,056,333 to support the departments and institutions. In eight years experience in the ice fields with Amundsen

GIRL SCOUT TROOP CAPTAINS CONFER

Plans Made for Broad Program of Activities During Summer Months Here

The first general meeting of the Girl Scout troop captains was held Friday morning at the Chamber of Commerce headquarters, with the director, Miss Vera Atkins, and definite plans were made for the summer program of work.

The lodge is to be inaugurated first, and each captain assumed responsibility for conducting some project for beautifying the lodge and its grounds. A tennis court is to be constructed before the first camp week is held there for junior girls July 9-18.

All captains also agreed to see that their troop as no girl will be permitted to attend camp who is not a registered Scout. A number of girls are ready to pass second and first class tests and the leaders are planning a special program for presentation of these second and first class honors. Captains will co-operate with the director in seeing that the girls measure up to camp requirements before being permitted to enter and that each girl pays the $3 camp fee to the captain of her troop.

Each troop is to conduct both troop and individual community projects for the purpose of helping toward the town and community and regular quarterly reports are to be made to the director and council on such work. Each troop also is to arrange for a troop treasurer who will take care of troop expenses. The Scouts will appreciate calls for service from the citizenship of Paris.

The captains agreed to sponsor a Radio Carnival at an early date for the benefit of the general Scout fund, and definite plans were made for a publicity campaign and ticket sale for the Girl Scout night program, June 29.

Many other pieces, too numerous to mention, of remedial legislation have been passed. The expenditure of public money, the public has received a dollar's value for the dollars spent and there has been nothing that might be made the basis for an inspiring sermon or a dashing editorial. In other words, the film is designed solely to entertain—and this it does, smoothly and easily.

Reginald Denny is, as always, simply Reginald Denny. He unites no intricate characterizations in any of his offerings, being content to enact roles that are merely a more or less exaggerated reflection of the reactions of the average American young man under conditions that might prove humorous to a disinterested on-looker. This formula is perhaps the secret of Denny's success. And "Good Morning, Judge" once again proves the efficacy of the recipe.

Mary Nolan proved a very personable and capable little actress as the heroine; and Dorothy Gulliver—a brunette this time—is adorable as Denny's sister. We would like to see these two young women given companion roles in future photoplays; they work so admirably together.

While "Good Morning, Judge" is not the best film turned out by the Denny forces, we do not hesitate to say that it will undoubtedly meet your entire approval for its swift moving, unstudied and laden with wholesome merit. On the same program you will find a real comedy that is also decidedly funny. It's silly from beginning to end, improbable and, in many places, impossible; but it had the entire audience holding its sides from laughter when we saw its last night—and that, dear friends, is the finest of all indorsements.

Of the country's entire production, Florida's is 81 per cent of the grape fruit; 61 per cent of the peppers; 21 per cent watermelons; 41 per cent table cucumbers; 24 per cent table tomatoes; 59 per cent eggplant; 83 1/2 per cent table snap beans; 15 per cent Irish potatoes; 32 per cent of the celery.

Two young men, about 20 years of age, were arrested at the ball park Friday afternoon by Chief of Police E. F. Floyd and City Patrolman Jack Carter. One of the young men climbed over the fence into the ball park and as Marshal Floyd, who had led him under surveillance for some time, started toward him, he made a hasty return over the fence. Marshal Floyd opened the side gate and ran out and caught the youth. The happening momentarily turned ball fans' attention from the game.

Both the young men are in the Lamar county jail. Officers declared that they will be charged with vagrancy.

CHRISTIAN LIVING IS REVIVAL THEME

Harvey Scott of Sherman Selects Text from First Thessalonians

The revival meeting conducted by the Lamar avenue Church of Christ with Evangelist Harvey Scott of Sherman preaching, is growing in interest. A large and attentive audience greeted the speaker on Thursday evening and on Friday morning there were 105 present. At the day services, the lessons are on Christian living, that Friday was taken from 1 Thessalonians 1.

The speaker said, "One of the fine principles of the Apostle Paul in this letter is that he was able to see the good in the congregation though there was sin in their lives. We should be big enough to commend the good in any life even though they have done wrong in other things. They may have done many things that we do not like, but we should be able to look over those and see the good that they do and commend them for it and at the same time try to correct the evil. We can not be influenced by those who do not believe in us."

"The apostle commended this congregation for three things. Their work of faith, their labor of love and patience of hope. Their work of faith is explained near the close of this chapter. He said they had turned from idols to God. They should be turned from the temporal to the eternal, from the world to Christ. We need to serve God and not man today. This was their labor of love. Our labors should all be prompted by love. If they are not prompted by love today, our service will not be accepted by the Lord as it would otherwise be. They were commended for their patience of hope, in waiting for the coming of Christ. If we believe that He is coming, and wish for this return, we will try to live as he would have us live."

"May we all so live that this Lord will commend us at the end of time and will lead us in through the gates into the city of the living God where we can serve Him forever. This congregation has done a wonderful work in their labor of love in making it possible for so many congregations of this county to have the gospel preached to them in the work that Brother Walker has been doing. May you be patient in your work and God will give you the increase."

Services are held each day at 10 a. m. and 8:15 p. m. You are invited to be present at all these services.

WOMAN PREACHES ON DIVIDING LINE

Mrs. Vera Gibbons at Methodist Protestant Revival Has Text in Isaiah

Friday evening services were very encouraging in attendance and also in response to the evangelist's appeal at the Methodist Protestant revival.

Mrs. Vera Gibbons, the evangelist, used Isaiah 28:16-17 as the basis for her sermon. She showed that all are either on God's or the devil's territory. She said that at death one would be claimed by the owner of one territory or the other and warned against staying too close to the line lest one be found on the wrong side.

Mrs. Gibbons made a very strong appeal that this territorial line not be drawn in the home but that father and mother lead their family far enough into God's territory so that they can not even see the enticing things in the devil's territory.

Services will continue all next week.

The morning service Friday was very inspiring.

The lesson was taken from Acts 4.

The Rev. G. W. Sanders, D. D., pastor of the Methodist Protestant church of Cooper brought his audience of 100 members from his congregation to this service.

A THOUGHT ABOUT FARMERS

THE American farmer has not been enjoying the extreme peak of prosperity in recent years. That fact has surely been drummed home during the last few months.
Yet one is tempted to wonder, sometimes, whether the American farmer is not, after all, considerably better off than the farmers of other lands.
The Gleaner Combine Harvester Corp., of Independence, Mo., recently sent a solid train of 125 cars all loaded with combine harvesters, to dealers in Nebraska cities of Sidney, Ogallala and Chappell. The entire shipment was worth considerably more than $200,000.
Farmers abroad may be doing very well. But they at least aren't buying $200,000 loads of farm machinery at one time.

AN IMMIGRANT CASE

IT DOES seem as if there ought to be enough common sense and kindness in our national government to enable our immigration authorities to administer the immigration restrictions a little less brutally.
Two little children, a seven-year-old girl and her six-year-old brother, landed at New York from Trinidad the other day, en route to visit their parents, who came here in 1923. They were detained at Ellis Island and will be deported; immigration authorities say they have no assurance that the parents will not keep the children here permanently. The parents are not citizens yet.
Probably the officials are obeying the letter of the law. But it hardly seems that the country would fall if those two youngsters did stay longer than their allotted six months. Government red tape causes many heart aches; America ought to be big enough to let children visit their parents.

THE YOSEMITE THREAT

THE Yosemite National Park, in California, is one of the most beautiful and popular of national monuments. More than half a million people visited it last summer; the number this year will be greater. Yet contrary to popular belief, not all of the land there is national property. There are more than 11,000 acres of privately owned land within the park; these lands can be cut over, used for hot dog stands or otherwise used so as to mar the natural beauty of the park.
The National Park Service wants to make this private acreage national property. It can do so by trading to the owners certain other park lands and paying about $2,000,000 in cash. An act of Congress is necessary before this can be done. Congress must act at the next session for lumbering operations are expected to be started next year.
It is highly important that that act go through at once. If you want to see the Yosemite preserve unspoiled, write your congressman at once.

THE IMPOSSIBLE THINGS

THE impossible things are the things that need to be done. So says the Rev. Henry H. Tweedy of Yale University in an address to the graduating class of Lake Erie College for Women.
The rise of civilization, the speaker points out, is the story of man's increasing accomplishment of the impossible. For most impossibilities are only imaginary; they seem impossible, and we accept them as such, until some very energetic or skeptical man comes along and does them.
There are a great many obvious illustrations. When Morse was experimenting with the telegraph there doubtless were many friends to tell him the thing was impossible. While the Wright brothers were making their first flight a distinguished Washington scientist, was proving mathematically, that flight in a heavier-than-air machine was impossible.
But the challenge to accomplish the impossible is not something that has to do solely with the material world. It is equally pressing in the realm of the spirit; more pressing there, in fact, than anywhere else.
Of all the problems now confronting the world, nothing is much greater than the problem of warfare. In the old days, when wars were conducted by relatively small armies, a war was not a major matter necessarily. Now, however, war affects everyone. The last war very nearly bankrupted European civilization.
It is up to the world to find some way of avoiding wars. But every time that is suggested someone is sure to say: "Oh, you can't ever do that. You can't change human nature."
Yet that is precisely what must be done. It is one of the impossibilities that this generation must accomplish. Human nature, of course, can be changed; it has been changed vastly in the last few centuries. Compare the ways and customs of medieval Europe with our own, if you don't believe it; it was "human nature" to do a great many things, in those days, which no sane man would think of doing now.
We must do it. The world's future will be pretty dark if we fail.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Two great rebels stand large in the historical panorama of politics in this century. Both led this nation toward a new high ground on social progress, both are now dead and both gave their illustrious names to sons who followed their footsteps into national politics.

Two rebels were Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin and Col. Theodore Roosevelt of New York were conspicuous at the Republican convention at Kansas City. They are known as Young Bob and Young Teddy. One of them is a rebel and the other is not.

One of them is taking up more and more room in the large shoes left by his father and the other has failed after desperate attempts.

YOUNG BOB has taken his father's seat in the Senate and has never stopped fighting for the La Follette principles. Young Teddy, with a head start, apparently can't quite live up to the Roosevelt traditions. He failed to capture his father's old job as governor of New York and will never get within shooting distance of the White House no matter how hard he tries.

Young Bob is 33 years old. Young Teddy is 42. Let's take a look at these two boys in the convention hall. La Follette was introduced to the convention by Chairman George Moses. He wore short black sideburns, Young Bob is quite short, and would pass for a college boy, for he has youth's appearance and exuberance.

He was there to present the minority progressive platform of Wisconsin as it was presented in the days of Old Bob from 1903 to 1924. But this is the first time a La Follette platform has ever been presented by a La Follette. The Wisconsin delegation always used to vote for old Bob for president and such jobs are not delegated to candidates.

THE great crowd looks at Young Bob and feels almost assured that such a young man will stumble and falter. Perhaps from its sympathy, he gets a large round of applause and much of the ovation comes from the galleries.

Then the convention suddenly learns that Old Bob handed down to Young Bob his gift of oratory.

AFTERWARD there was much complimentary talk about Young Bob and dozens of persons visited his hotel to congratulate him.

He is up for re-election this year and the power interests of Wisconsin will spend large sums attempting to beat him. But from his father Young Bob learned much about how to lick these very same folks.

"I shall not compromise and I shall not surrender," said Bob in his last campaign and there you have the apparent difference between Young Bob and Young Teddy.

WHERE Bob maintained his father's fight for principles, Teddy fought only to emulate him in obtaining office and popularity.

Teddy undertook to emulate the elder Roosevelt's physical characteristics. Thus far he has mastered a fair imitation of the late T. R.

We found Teddy outside the convention auditorium, taking to ex-Senator Jimmy Wadsworth. While the son of La Follette was making his gallant effort from the platform, becoming its center of attention and admiration, the son of Roosevelt was a mere spectator at the party's big show.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

POTATO MARKET

From the Red River County Herald:

OWING to the fact that the bottom has fallen out of the price of this year's crop of potatoes, the farmers have ceased to sell. Prices ran down as low as 35 cents per bushel last week and has forced thousands of bushels in this section to be withdrawn from the markets. This condition is to be regretted, of course, for our farmers have looked forward to this summer crop with much interest and it will have a tendency to reduce the acreage next year, but people should remember that cotton sometimes fails to bring the price they are looking for but they increase the acreage as a rule instead of reducing it.

This is not offered as a dictation but to try and encourage our people to not become so thoroughly disgusted as that they will quit. This section of the country is going to have to depend on a few other things besides cotton for later selling and put the ground in sweet potatoes and fall Irish potatoes and try hedging in this manner.

It is a calamity to any section that has worked as hard as parts of Red River county to encourage truck raising to meet with such prices as those raising potatoes this year, but there is a way out and the farmer that keeps his head and uses his "thinker" will come out O. K. at last.

A girl named Brass is suing a real estate man for $75,000 for heart balm because the man kissed her. Quite an unusual name.

Then there was the delegate who came home and told his wife he looked like that because he slipped on a wet plank.

The Republicans didn't do a thing about it, and we don't think the Democrats will—we mean relief for the other seven teams in the American League.

Tip to the oil men: we have a friend who will buy a car just as soon as filling stations are put on the installment basis.

A couple of weeks after a man is nominated as candidate for the presidency, he is notified of the honor. You'd think he'd almost find it out for himself in that time.

What this country needs is a contest to see how long everybody can refrain from long distance contests.

President Coolidge sent a telegram to Herbert Hoover the other day telling him he had been nominated for "the most important post in the world." Cal must take that job seriously.

United States Women In Twelve Years Become Factor In Politics

By Martha Dalrymple

WASHINGTON, (P)—Twelve years ago the woman partisan politician was a timid soul, sinking gratefully into her place in the political sun. Today she is strong and confident of her position.
Back in 1916 she had 29 representatives at the Democratic national convention and only 14 at the Republican gathering; she had no representatives on either of the national committees, and she didn't even have the right to vote.
Today, on the eve of the party nominating conventions, she has equal representation with men in the membership of the two national committees, two of her number hold the vice chairmanships of the major national committees, and she not only has a voice in determining the man who will represent her party in the presidential race, but she can vote for him after he is nominated.

Women were given a few appointive places as delegates, without votes and as alternates, as long ago as 1916. These appointments came from the western states, some of which had granted their women citizens suffrage before the passage of the nineteenth amendment.
This year the Democrats have gone so far as to include in their call for the national convention that eight delegates-at-large be elected with one-half a vote apiece, to provide representation for women.

In the 1924 conventions both parties included an equal number of women and men on the national committees and both made provisions for the appointment of a woman as vice chairman. In the Republican convention women cast 111 of the 1,109 votes, while women cast 119 of the 1,093 Democratic convention votes. The division of votes, in order to provide for a greater number of delegates, gave the Republican women an actual delegation of 120, with 279 alternates. The Democrats sent 200 women delegates and 311 alternates.

More and more women are being appointed and elected to important positions and committees within their party ranks. In 1924 Mrs. Elizabeth P. Martin, of Pennsylvania, was made chairman of the Republican committee on permanent organizations, a committee composed of 43 men and 11 women, one woman was on the Republican committee on credentials, while one of the pioneer women Democrats, Mrs. Leroy Springs, of South Carolina, was made chairman of the party credentials committee.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury of New York, now a national Democratic committeewoman, was temporary reading secretary in 1924, and Mrs. Frank Reeves, of Washington, presented the resolution on the death of President Wilson.

At the 1920 convention, for the first time, each presidential candidate selected a woman to make the seconding address to his nomination before both conventions.
So far reports bode well for the party women in the 1928 meetings. One, Mrs. Carolina O'Day, of Rye, New York, is slated to be made chairman of the New York Democratic state delegation, and another, Mrs. W. E. Maulsby, Democrat, of Des Moines, Iowa, is the only woman chairman of a state committee.

Miss Jessie Scott, Democratic national committeewoman from St. Paul, Minn., has been appointed head of the stenographic force for the meeting at Houston.

To encourage bidding on the part of your partner is the primary purpose of the opening bid. Your opening bid conveys a partial description of your hand that partner can use to excellent advantage.

Suits in the order of their encouragement are as follows:
1—A minor suit. It encourages a no trump or another suit bid that may eventually lead to a game-going declaration. It denies a sound major or sound no-trumper.
2—A no trump. It encourages a major suit declaration.
3—A major suit. Offers least encouragement for a better declaration.
From the foregoing and the previous articles we now may make the following observations:
1—Never bid a suit of less than four cards (a short suit).
2—Never make an initial bid on less than two quick tricks.
3—To make an opening bid third hand requires at least two quick tricks more than first or second hand requires for an initial bid.
4—To make an opening bid, fourth hand requires at least one quick trick more than first or second hand requires for an initial bid.
5—In a no-trumper three suits must be stopped in any position, except when holding four quick tricks concentrated in two short suits.
6—In a no-trumper a singleton less than A is dangerous.
7—In an initial no-trumper a worthless doubleton is a weak spot, unless the hand is otherwise very strong.
8—In third and fourth position.

STORM CELLARS AT PETTY WERE POPULAR THURSDAY

PETTY, June 22.—Thursday morning at 5:30 we were visited by one of the hardest winds we ever had here and a downpour of rain for an hour. Some outhouses were wrecked and pieces of tin were blown off some of the barns and hen house roofs and some limbs off of some of the shade trees. The storm cellars were full at 2 o'clock but when the straight wind came later no one had time to get to theirs or their neighbors. The Baptist dinner will be down town Saturday. The Terrors of Tuberculosis Being Dispelled

Tuberculosis has been named the "great white plague." One-tenth of all the deaths in the United States are due to tuberculosis. To say nothing of the broken hearts, the annual economic loss from this cause has been estimated at a billion dollars.

The presence in the body of the germ of tuberculosis is not always followed by the disease tuberculosis. There enters into the matter another factor, and that is the resistance of the individual.

Autopsies performed on a very large number of persons who died of diseases other than tuberculosis, in show evidence of the disease in more than 90 per cent. One observer says in 98 per cent of all cases. We now believe that in one form or another most persons are infected at some time during their existence, usually early in life.

Fortunately, the majority of those infected with tuberculosis have within themselves the power to resist the disease. But if this resistance is broken down the germ becomes active, and the patient yields to the disease.

That is the reason why it is so important for us to guard the health if we wish to avoid this terrible affliction. That is why poverty, poor food, bad housing, overwork, worry, intemperance and dissipation pave the way for the disease. All these things lessen the resistance of the individual, allowing the ever-present germs to become active.

Tuberculosis usually attacks persons in early adult life. Its mortality is greatest between the ages of 25 and 35. In other words, when the individual should be of the greatest use to the world and when

Colts Win First Home Game of Second Half From Twins 6 to 5

COLTS HAMMER TRIO TEXARKANA HURLERS FRIDAY

Ludwig Pitches Stellar Ball Until He Reached the Ninth and Weakened

By Harry Cox
Playing before a fair sized week day crowd, Bowman's Colts won the opening game of the series from the Texarkana Twins and sent the home folks home in a happy frame of mind. The score was 6 to 5, and during the afternoon's festivities the Twins staged a pitching parade, using three chunkers in an effort to stop the Colts.

Miller, starting pitcher, went out under a barrage of base hits and Lefty Price was yanked to allow "Grandpa" Woods, another pitcher, to bat for him. Bo Molenda, famous the world over as a foot-ball star, and a member of the All-American eleven, pitched the last two rounds. Molenda, who has been toiling in the livery of the Waco Cubs, found that they hit him in class as well as class A, as he was touched up for three hits and a run while he worked on the mound.

Ludwig did the hurling for the Colts and for eight innings looked like a million dollars. Ludwig held the Twins to one earned run for eight innings and had two out in the ninth when the Twins suddenly unleashed a savage rally, and began to belt the ball all over left. Ludwig, a victim of poor support in the early frames, had pitched himself out and the Twins were quick to take advantage of the fact that he had weakened and scored four runs on six solid base smacks before Parsons was thrown out at the plate after Bill Speer had singled over second.

Lola Cato made a great play on this hit, when he flashed over second and knocked the ball down. The coacher at third, sure of the ball going to the outfield, sent Parsons home, and he was thrown out at the plate by ten feet. It was an awful round and gave the faithful fans near heart failure before it was finally ended.

The Colts hit the ball when hits meant rallies. Captain Jimmy Adair, Rip Radcliff, Danny Lynch, a recent addition to the club, George Leinbach and Fred Cato figuring in the run getting. Radcliff hit a home run in the third that cleared the wall next to the scoreboard. It was a terrific line drive and came with a runner on base. Rip also counted for another Colt run with a slashing single with a runner on the base.

Adair and Kinnear carried off the fielding honors, Kinnear making a couple of circus catches, one of which he turned into a double play, while Adair fielded as only Adair can do. The half pint third sacker was on top of some hard drives that he smothered and nailed his man at first.

The Twins went scoreless for six rounds and were presented with a single score in the seventh, and during this time the Colts had collected six earned runs, and the game looked "in." There is an old axiom that you can't never tell in baseball and the sudden onslaught of the Twins in the ninth proved this to be a fact.

The Colts got their first run in the second. After Radcliff, who hoisted out to right, Stagner and F. Cato drew passes, L. Cato popped out to short, but Leinbach came through with a hard drive to left that scored Stagner.

In the third with one out, Adair slashed a hit over third and stole second while Miller was winding up. Danny Lynch smacked a single to left that counted the Captain, while Leinbach rode home on Radcliff's circuit clutch. That ball was hard hit and was given about all a baseball can stand.

In the fifth Kinnear walked and Captain Adair sacrificed him to second. Lynch hit to center and Kinnear, trying to score on the hit, was called out at the plate on a close play. That ended Miller's activities for the afternoon and Price, a left hander, took over the job of stopping the Colts. He was rudely greeted by Radcliff, who singled to left and Lynch scored. Fred Cato led off the sixth with a clean drive to center for two bases and Lola Cato beat out an infield hit, only to be forced by Leinbach.

Fred Cato scored on Ludwig's infield out. The Colts threatened in the eighth with Molenda on the hill, Lola Cato beating out a bunt on which the famous Bo did not attempt to make a play, and Leinbach singled to right, but Ludwig ended the round with a fly to Williams in center.

Ludwig was in trouble not of his own making in nearly every inning, but hit was the seventh before the visitors could negotiate Ludwig for a run. Two double plays, one in the second and one in the sixth, helped Ludwig out of difficulties that errors had put him. Kinnear being on the starting end of one in the second and Cato, Leinbach and Radcliff pulling the one in the sixth.

In the seventh, with one out,

Soviet Women Defeat Men In Some Sports: Girl Best Swimmer

More man in Russia is pressed hard for athletic supremacy by none other than his gentle womenfolk. Out of the great mass of 600,000 women engaged in various sports have come several strong contenders for Soviet sport honors. Women rule the Soviet in some events, including the 100-meter swim won by Miss Mita Messerer. The Misses Yanushevskaya and Kuznetzova of Moscow are leading women runners.

Clement popped a Texas leaguer into right and Moore got a life when L. Cato kicked his hit to short that was a made to order double play, the kid booting the ball in his eagerness to make the twin killing. Grandpa Woods batted for Price and hit a two-nothing ball for a single, filling the bases. Storey Williams flew out to Lynch in right and Clements scored. Tommy Thorpe struck out to end the inning.

The Twins were retired in order in the eighth, and with two out in the ninth the fans started to leave the stands. Moore's single to left halted the exodus, and Molenda's Texas leaguer to left put two on. Williams dropped a single to left that filled the bases. Thorpe, who had failed in the seventh, came through this time with a wallop to right that scored the Pudgy Moore and Molenda. Parsons hit to center, scoring Williams and Thorpe and the tying run was on second base. Speer hit over second and Cato flashed over and got the ball too late to throw Bill out at first. Parsons made a try for the plate and Cato's throw to Stagner nailed him by ten feet and the game was over. It was tough on Ludwig.

The same clubs play again this afternoon and Sunday. Sid Hopkins, who for several years made Paris his first stopping place every spring, will likely do the chunking for the Twins, while Bowman has himself, Allred and Chandler from which to choose.

The party of Dallas baseball officials, who were expected to be present, failed to show up. They stated over the telephone yesterday morning that they were leaving Dallas about 9:30 for Paris, but failed to reach here. They are looked for this afternoon.

MARKETS

Fontaine Martin & Co.
Brokers, Paris, Texas

NEW ORLEANS, June 22.—An increased volume of buying was seen in the cotton market today, coming from traders who were convinced that this crop cannot do anything but moderately small at its best and very small at its worst, judging from the reports that have arrived since the seed first went into the ground and from the accounts still coming in, which indicate anything but improvement. Slowly but surely speculative interest is swinging towards cotton because the facts stick out that the South this season will have a difficult task to produce enough cotton to satisfy world requirements regardless of a fairly heavy carryover from previous season.

Of most importance today was the opinion that the barometer lines on the weather map meant rains over Sunday. Further moisture at this time would retard cultivation of fields which already are foul and in some cases are foul enough to be abandoned immediately. Already there are indications of considerable abandonment, which may have its effect on the government's acreage report as of the first of July and to be issued on July 9.

Should the reports of tomorrow indicate rain in the belt over Sunday we would expect higher prices on the weekend, but without unfavorable weather reports, realizing from the long side is to be expected.

There are leaders—and there are trailers

In every gathering you can pick them out—the people whose clothes are always in style, who drive smart cars, furnish their homes with taste, entertain artistically. They are the leaders. They don't seem to spend any more money than their neighbors and yet they undoubtedly set the pace.

And at the other end of the line you can pick the trailers. They are the people who are always a little out of step. They are the last to hear that styles have changed—the last to learn of new housekeeping methods or improvements in automobiles. They think "Remember" is the latest song hit, and are planning to get "Main Street" out of the library.

What is it that makes the difference between front-rank and rear-rank families? Temperament partly, of course. But the real answer is that one group chooses to keep posted while the other is willing to remain in ignorance.

It is just as certain that the leaders in any social set read the advertising columns and take advantage of their suggestions as it is that the tail-enders do not.

Chapter 35.

Virginia was in Oliver's office the next morning before he arrived. She had experienced a night of terrible suspense, wondering how much money he actually had made for her and what had happened to the oil stock he mentioned. She prayed that the losses sustained had not been severe. It would be tragic to endure a setback, especially at this time when she was facing the necessity of finishing what she had started out to accomplish, without his assistance. For she must take her account elsewhere, she knew. There was no hope of concealing anything in her life from Frederick Dean, apparently.

And then there was Jeanie with her ready acceptance of the basest construction that could be put upon the affair. Virginia burned with mingled ire and shame when her thoughts turned back to Jeanie's scathing indictment. Nathaniel had noticed her perturbation several times at dinner and finally asked if anything was troubling her. She had assured him blithely that she was all right, but with the best composure she could summon that there was nothing at all the matter.

"You know I've wondered a few times lately if I'm not becoming of less importance in your scheme of things," he said thoughtfully. It disturbed Virginia.

"Niel," she expostulated, frightened, "please don't say that."

"Well, you haven't even mentioned any of your plans for weeks," he complained.

"Oh, my dear, I thought everything was going so well I wasn't making any plans. You're happy in your work, aren't you?"

"I can't deny that, but what's become of all those promises to marry me when you'd had a fair fling at self-expression? Seems to me you've proved pretty conclusively that you can make good on your own effort. And I'm doing well enough to support a wife, you know. About as well as my wife ever will be supported, I mean to say. Of course, when I'm famous I'll be supported, I mean to say. Oh why did you bring this up now?" Virginia smiled.

"Well, why not now?" Nathaniel drove on doggedly. "Just because I haven't said anything about it was no reason for thinking I'd lost interest in the subject."

And so again Virginia was forced to put him off, and when they said good night she felt that he was hurt and puzzled. There was even a touch of aloofness in his kiss—and he took only one. It was not like Nathaniel.

All night she tossed and turned, dwelling alternately upon his attitude and Jeanie's accusation, with the specter of defeat ever drawing closer, driving her to the verge of despair.

Small wonder she looked a pitiful sight when she walked into Oliver's office and asked if he had come in. Miss Evans started visibly when she saw her and was impelled to ask if she was ill.

"No, I'm all right," Virginia answered wearily. "Do you think Mr. Cutter will be in soon?"

"He may," Miss Evans answered kindly. "Quite often he is here before I am." Quite often, yes—perhaps once or twice a year, but Miss Evans wanted to encourage Virginia even if she did have to stretch the truth a little. She was sorely conscience-stricken on Virginia's account. Her mental state had not been a pleasant one since she had been called into her employer's office on the day she had first lunched with Virginia, and instructed to refuse further invitations from the former society girl.

She was astonished to have her hopeful assumption regarding Oliver's arrival justified a few minutes later. He showed no surprise at seeing Virginia there and asked her into his private office almost without a preliminary greeting. Miss Evans understood the meeting had been arranged.

But what passed between the two she could only guess when, about 20 minutes later, Virginia staggered out of Oliver's office and collapsed upon the floor. She had closed the door behind her, however, and there was no sound from her lips. Oliver did not know what had happened. Miss Evans instantly decided not to call him. She only glanced at the door with fierce hatred before she stooped to assist Virginia, who lay motionless at her feet.

The girl was not easily revived, though Miss Evans worked frantically over her limp body. At the first sign of consciousness there was a wild, desperate light in her eyes. It terrified Miss Evans. Virginia seized the latter's hand and clung to it while a veritable paroxysm of trembling shook her like the ague. Miss Evans imagined she heard her teeth chattering. Fortunately no one from the other offices came into the reception room before Virginia was able to get to her feet and waver to a chair.

Miss Evans cast many anxious glances toward Oliver's door while she aided Virginia to regain her composure.

"I want to talk with you," she whispered when Virginia was calm enough to heed what she was saying. "Please go out and wait for me in the hall. I'll get one of the girls in the inner office to take my desk and then we'll go to the rest room. I've something important to tell you."

Virginia looked at her searchingly and appeared to realize her seriousness. She nodded and Miss Evans helped her to her feet and led her to the door. A few minutes later the secretary joined her in the hall and guided her to the rest room.

It was a modern, cheerfully furnished place with couches and comfortable chairs. Miss Evans made Virginia remove her hat and lie down before she would talk to her. Finally she pulled a chair close to her side and said: "You may have wondered why I refused to lunch with you after that first day. Well," she hurried on without waiting for an answer—"Mr. Cutter instructed me to have nothing whatever to say to you. He made it quite plain that it would cost me my position to do so."

Virginia raised herself on an elbow. "Do you know why?" she asked.

"No I don't," Miss Evans told her; "but if you will tell me what happened just now in his office perhaps I may be able to figure it out."
